LEFT AND RIGHT

In medieval times, when manners were very strict, children were drilled in the use of the hands with great care. The right hand was used in eating, etc., and was naturally called the "right" or correct hand. The other hand which was "left" out of use when the "right" hand was being employed, and these terms became customary. History is silent as to the troubles of left-handed youngsters.

BOLL WEEVIL DAMAGING COTTON NEAR BATESBURG

Special to The Dispatch-News.

Batesburg, July 12.—The boll weevil has made his appearance and is already doing considerable damage in some sections. The cotton growers are picking up the squares and plowing the cotton every few days. On account of the small acreage in cotton this year it is much easier to fight the advance of the pests.

SAFE AIR TRAVEL

The amazing records for safety in air transit established in England recently will go far to make the new method of travel popular. During the first year of civil flying in England following the war 38,641 flights were made and some 10,000 passengers were carried. In all this period there was but one fatal accident. The record compares very favorably with railroad or automobile travel. This enormous fleet of aircraft flew a total of 134,200 miles, or a distance equal to about thirty times the circumference of the earth. 114 aeroplanes were carried by the 45 routes amounting to 116,498 pounds. During the present year $1,000,000 worth of imports and exports were carried between England and the Continent. In this period of civil flying 114 aeroplanes have been registered and 310 machines of various types have been licensed. Flying is therefore not only one of the safest means of transportation, but is making rapid strides as regards its commercial development. If such results have been accomplished in scarcely more than a year following the war, it is safe to predict that a few years will witness enormous fleets of commercial aircraft winging their way in all directions.—Boys Life.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE COUNTY SUPERVISOR

Editor Dispatch-News.

Will you be good enough to publish the following open letter to our county supervisor:

Dear Mr. Steel:—

I want to compliment you for the good roads in and around Cayce and to New Brookland. Poor taxpayers, guess we are reaping what we sowed at the ballot box, as there hasn't been a lick of work on these roads in two years.

Do you think it right two gentlemen take great pleasure in coming to Cayce and Brookland and get a bag of money and then we are not thought of until next pay day? We people have about got enough of such government, and Richland county says she will give us value received for our taxes.

Why not come?

Taxpayer.
